solo string quartet

strings

The players in solo string quartet should be concertante soloists, playing the main string parts when they don't have solo lines.

Ideally — and especially because of the divisi passages in the second movement — I'd love to have six first violins and six seconds, including (if necessary) the soloists. But (again because of those divisi passages) four of each should be the minimum, along with four violas and three cellos (once more including the soloists). Four cellos might be better, though, to give the bass line in the second movement the proper heft. A single bass should be enough, but if there's more than one, the part at rehearsal 13 in the last movement might be played as a solo, with the full section resuming in the bar just before rehearsal 14.

Unslurred notes, in my music, should always be sustained. Even repeated unslurred notes should never be played detached, unless they're marked that way. In a few crucial places, I've marked repeated notes "sustained," but only as a reminder. Similar places without that marking should be played the same way. Note, though, that in the last movement, the repeated unslurred notes in the strings should be rhythmic, as well as sustained.

NOTES

In our time, a symphony would be a large piece, full of striving and important thoughts. But this symphony isn't like that. It returns to the 18th century notion of a symphony, which was that symphonies — think of Haydn writing them at the Esterhazy summer palace — were entertainment. So I've used what I hope will be comfortable musical materials, including more than a trace of pop.

I've also played with Haydn's forms. The first movement is sonata form, of a sort (in which the recapitulation unorthodoxly functions as a coda). Note the quiet fanfares at the start. I was thinking of movie fanfares, like the ones at the start of films from 20th Century Fox. The second movement, true to 18th century practice, is relaxed and lyrical, though musically it's a doowop ballad, or maybe a lounge music version of one, which means it also glances back to the 1950s.

The third movement, a scherzo, again follows 18th century practice because the trio is unabashed ear candy. (Listen to the symphonies of Antonio Rosetti, 1750-1792, for some delightfully unabashed examples.) There's also a little composer's entertainment: In the middle of the trio, the music starts to play backwards, so the repeat of the scherzo, when it comes, is the exact retrograde of what was heard at the beginning.

The finale (also in sonata form, of a sort) is a romp, though it's also the most intricately scored of all the movements. And really (as the game in the third movement helps to demonstrate) the whole symphony is intricate. Don't be fooled because I call it entertainment. It's full of compositional stuff; even the second movement, my loving tribute to the '50s, lavishes three separate melodies over its simple pop-song form, all of them equipped with counterpoints. Not that this is any guarantee of quality. But for better or worse, I've written a dense little piece, and one reason it ended up so short, I think, is that there's quite a lot going on.

This musical score page shows a section for an orchestra. The instrumentation includes Oboe (Ob.), Horn (Hn.), Violin 1 (Vln. 1), Violin 2 (Vln. 2), Viola (Vla.), Cello (Vc.), and Bass (Cb.). The music is in common time, with various key signatures (B-flat major, A major, D major) indicated by sharps and flats. Measure 80 begins with a dynamic p for the Oboe, followed by a ritardando (rit.) instruction. The Horn (Hn.) enters with a melodic line, marked pp. The strings (Violins, Violas, Cellos, Bass) provide harmonic support with sustained notes and rhythmic patterns. The woodwind section (Oboe and Horn) continues to play playfully, creating a light and airy atmosphere.

III
Scherzo (Palindrome)

Brisk       $\text{♩} = 128$

The musical score consists of ten staves, each representing a different instrument or voice. The instruments listed from top to bottom are: 2 Oboes, Bassoon, 2 Horns in F, Solo Violin 1, Solo Violin 2, Solo Viola, Solo Violoncello, Violin 1, Violin 2, Viola, Violoncello, and Contrabass. The score is set in common time (indicated by a '4' in a circle) throughout. Measure numbers 1 through 5 are visible above the staff. Dynamics such as f (fortissimo), ff (fortississimo), and arco (bowing) are indicated where applicable. The music features a complex rhythmic pattern involving various time signatures (e.g., 3/4, 2/4, 3/4, 2/4) and rests.

The musical score consists of nine staves, each representing a different instrument or section of the orchestra. The instruments are: Oboe (Ob.), Solo Violin 1, Solo Violin 2, Solo Cello (Solo Vla.), Violin 1 (Vln. 1), Violin 2 (Vln. 2), Viola (Vla.), Double Bass (Vc.), and Cello (Cb.). The score is set against a background of vertical bar lines representing measures. The first few measures show the Oboe and Solo Violin 1 playing eighth-note patterns. Measure 110 begins with a dynamic instruction '110'. The subsequent measures feature continuous eighth-note patterns from the soloists, with the tempo indicated by 'V' markings above the staff. The time signature shifts frequently between 5/8 and 3/4 throughout the section.
